7.4   Yes, ASCII is a prefix code.
       Theorem 7.2.12 states that if the size of the codewords is constant then the character code is a prefix code.
       ASCII maps all of the characters to a unique 7 digit codeword. Therefore it is a prefix code.